MANX.

SILVER AND COPPER.

* * The following remarkable Collection of Manx Coins, in unusually fine condition, includes the Clay Collection, and the identical specimens photographed for Dr. Clay's work on the Manx Coinage. Some of the paper numerals remain on these Coins, as they were photographed. The 1724 Penny, the 1732, "divided date" Pattern Pence, and the Athol Pattern, 1735, in Silver, are supposed to be unique: the Silver Pattern for a Half Crown is an extreme rarity. The References are to Dr. Clay's Work, 1859, now rare, two fine copies of which accompany this Collection.

206	Limerick Butcher's Halfpenny of 1679, see Clay, p. 53	1		16
207	Newby Piece, or St. Patrick's Halfpenny, struck in silver, very fine (Clay, pl. 1, fig. 9)	1	/	/
208	Another, different die	1	/	/
209	Another, different die	1	/	/
210	Another, different die	1	/	/
* *	Four varieties of die, see the letters on rev. , also the "Rex," &c., Two read Piebs, in lieu of Plebs.
211	Silver Sicilian Piece, with triune (pl. I, fig. 3); a fine Claudia Greek Silver Coin, Wrestler's, rev. Triune; two other small Sicilian Coins, in Silver; also a Bronze Sicilian Coin (pl. I, fig. 4)	5	/	5
212	Small Bronze Sicilian Coin; also 8 specimens of Mick Wilson's Dublin, 1672, Coin, obv. St. George and dragon, different types, one extremely fine, rare	9		10
213	William Wigfall, his Halfpenny, Southwarke; John Murray Penny, 1668 (p. 49, fig. 5); Phelps' Halfpenny (pl. I, fig. 6), Clay's No. on coin still as photographed ; John Hutton Copper Coin	4	3	6
214	"Leather Money," obv. 1D.	1		10
* *	Considered a great rarity, as showing the difficulty of Manx currency. Waldron confirms Bishop Meyrick that leather money was used. (Clay, p. 24).

- 15 215 "Ducatoon of Flanders," at one time used in the Island (2), 1636, 1648; also a Sketch by Dr. Clay giving their weight, &c. both have the Triune; also a Five-lire Piece of Sicily, with Triune in the arms, all fine 3
- 1 4 216 Pennies, 1709 (2), one with Clay's No. still on, as photographed, in remarkable condition (pl. I, fig. 16), fine, and rare 2
- 18 217 Pennies, 1709, as last (3) (3)
- 1 6 218 Halfpenny, 1709 (pl. I, fig. 13) (2), one unusually fine (2)
- 14 219 Halfpennies, 1709, as last (2)
- 7 10 220 Penny of 1723 (rev. whitened to photograph), fine, and of great rarity 1
- 6 221 Halfpenny, 1723, struck in silver, very fine, and extremely rare date 1
- 7 222 Halfpenny, 1723, in copper, extremely fine and rare 1
- 2 223 Another, different die (?) very fine 1
- 11 15 224 The supposed unique Penny of 1724 (pl. I, fig. 21) 1
- * * The mark of Dr. Clay's No. as photographed still on. Examined carefully it will be found to be a genuine struck coin, the edge showing a crack; the flaw of the broken die clear, as compared with the photo. Dr. Clay says (p. 65): "Here we have a coin minted in 1724 of a different die. It is the flaw in the die which, I believe, explains the affair, that is, the die broke in the striking, and (with the exception of this proof-piece preserved) put an end to the matter." "The motto on the rev. retains the word Gesseris, as well as V in place of U. The eagle is large, its tail broad and straight" (not fanwise). "I consider this piece unique" (p. 65). It is of copper, but whitened to enable it to be photographed
- 15 225 Pattern Piece, 1732, with the divided date and the spray at the head of the cradle, whitened slightly to photograph (plate VII, fig. 22), of extreme rarity, extremely fine 1
- 5 7 6 226 Another, 1732, the rare divided date, with spray, has been in circulation 1
- * * The above are of extreme rarity.
- 3 17 227 Penny and Halfpenny, 1833, as before, struck in silver, extremely fine and rare 2
- 4 228 Penny and Halfpenny, 1833, as before, struck in silver, but apparently from another die, brilliant (2)
